The sharing of computer accounts is prohibited by the College.

If a department needs an account for a temporary employee, Human Resources must let Technology Services know that a new account needs to be created. Do not share your account with your co-workers, students or visitors to the College.

There are some exceptions to this rule. For example, a student work study account can be created, and shared among a department’s student workers. By using this account, instead of sharing your account, access can be limited to specific folders.

Unauthorized sharing will result in account suspension.

Please contact Technology Services with any questions, concerns or problems that you may have.