Agribusiness accounts for 20% of the American economy – and it’s Pennsylvania’s number one industry.

Now, Delaware Valley College and HACC, Central Pennsylvania’s Community College – two of the leading education institutions in the field of agribusiness – have joined forces to give you the opportunity to earn a bachelor’s degree and even your master’s degree. All right on HACC’s Harrisburg Campus.

Through this dual-admission program, once you graduate from HACC with a two-year degree in Agribusiness, you’ll seamlessly enroll as a junior in Delaware Valley College’s bachelor’s degree program. You’ll then take upper-level courses from Delaware Valley College faculty at HACC’s Harrisburg Campus.

The Delaware Valley College Agribusiness Program at HACC is flexible and convenient.

- Pursue your degree full or part time.
- Gain specific training for the region’s agricultural industries.
- Graduate from HACC with at least a 2.5 GPA and continue on a full-time basis and you may qualify for scholarships.
- Complete your four-year education without relocating. The only time you’ll need to go to Delaware Valley College’s main campus in Doylestown, PA, is for your graduation.
- Take advantage of resources at both institutions, such as library and student services.
- Benefit from career opportunities through extensive partnerships with agribusiness industries.
- On-site advising from Delaware Valley College at HACC
- Financial Aid is available for qualified students

For more information contact:

Mr. Glenn Pascal
Continuing Education
Delaware Valley College
215-489-4848

or

Pam Heffner
Continuing Education
Delaware Valley College
215-489-4469

Or email us at: Conted@delval.edu

Rts. 611 & 202, Doylestown, PA
215-489-4848 | www.delval.edu